

The Ten of Diamonds Person

The Blessed Card

This card sits in the very center of the Grand Spread of cards, protected on all sides by Jupiter's blessings. It is THE card of material opulence though few of them actually achieve this reality. However, all of them are protected financially and will always have a certain amount of good luck. To achieve their highest potential, they need to be involved in a business, preferably their own. They have the know how to manage and run a business of any size. Many of them inherit or marry into wealth.

With so many blessings, you might expect them to be generous souls, but that is not always the case. Many of them simply direct these blessings to the acquisition of more money and some of them even become ruthless in this regard. Others, however, pay heed to their Queen of Clubs Karma Card, the card of intuition and service through knowledge, and devote their talents and resources to helping the world. All tens are in danger of becoming overly fixated on 'accumulation' of things related to their suit. For the Ten of Diamonds, this would manifest as a money fixation. Some Ten of Diamonds can be very selfish.

With their creativity and intelligence, they are always successful in whatever they undertake. Usually this power is directed towards business and gain and there is no size of business or financial enterprise that they cannot handle. If they develop their spiritual awareness, their later years will be filled with expansion of their mind and soul instead of doubt and indecision. Many find an artistic avenue of expression in their later years, which brings many rewards.

Some of the Ten of Diamond Issues Concerning Relationships

Ten of Diamonds have a strong desire for love and relationships and also some karma from past lives that must be discharged through one or more difficult divorces or separations. They bring into this life some karma of having been the one who left another unfairly and unlovingly. In this life, they are likely to receive the same treatment from another, often the same person they were with before.

They want love and are usually the one who initiates new relationships. It is their own emotionally restless nature that must be dealt with before they can have a successful marriage. They often find themselves in situations where they must sacrifice their own need for affection for higher reasons or to help others in need. They are learning to love themselves and the child within. Finding that relationship within brings them more fortune in other relationships as well.

The female Ten of Diamonds should not let relationships come before her work and career, except in few cases where there is great compatibility. There always seems to be great burdens associated with romance and marriage.
