

The Three of Diamonds Person

The Undecided Values Card

The Three of Diamonds is considered one of the more difficult of the life paths of all the cards, especially when the Three of Diamonds is a woman. Indecision in values along with past life relationship karma (Six of Hearts Karma Card) can cause many challenges in the area of affects for life. They also can be some of the biggest worriers about their finances. All Threes are guilty of worry and indecision and must find constructive outlets for their overactive mind to direct it away from worry and fear. The best remedy is to find some expression of their creativity. They must express themselves.

A natural interest in metaphysics should be cultivated if they are to know more peace in their lives and overcome the many hurdles and temptations. They always know what is right and wrong, though sometimes they try to ignore what they know. Not all Three of Diamonds have these problems. Operating out of the high side of this card, they are extremely creative and productive, expressing themselves in a multitude of productive ways. They can be the greatest entertainers or public speakers.

They also have very powerful minds capable of piercing the deepest and most mysterious subjects. They can also be powerful speakers once they have found something they believe in that they want to talk about. This is one of their highest forms of expression - to promote what they believe in and share it with the world.

They have more satisfaction in business where they can travel or do various different things. There is usually someone younger for whom they must make sacrifices, often one or more of their own children. With three nines in their Life Path, their later life can be disappointing, UNLESS they have developed their spiritual side, which will give them peace and wisdom. These people are here to try many 'things' on for size and then to settle on the truth. They always benefit from changes and travel and are advised to pursue a career that gives them some freedom.

Some of the Three of Diamonds Issues Concerning Relationships

Talk about challenges in love! This card runs neck and neck with the Queen of Diamonds as being the most difficult in the deck in this area. There is such great creativity in this card that they come into this life feeling like there are boundless realms to explore and experience. At some point they realize that they also have tremendous fears of abandonment and betrayal that must be dealt with along the way. This usually manifests as multiple relationships or chronic indecision regarding matters of love and marriage. If they cannot deal with their own inner insecurities, they will usually choose to have transitory relationships. They are learning to let others be as they are and to heal their own fear and doubt in matters of love. Multiple marriages are common with this card, as with the Queen of Diamonds.
